

CLASS AGENT'S REPORT

Curly Marsh

Thanks to the strong support of '33 classmates and associates, Annual Giving in our 60th anniversary year has been highly successful. We exceeded our $333,333.33 goal by over $57,000, and equally pleasing was the response to our appeal for an outstanding record of class participation in which we were far ahead of last year and one of only a few classes to reach 80%.

All of us should feel gratified that there is still lots of life, loyalty, and largess left in these old bones, spurring us to do it right once again. Special applause goes to the Annual Giving office whose professional back-up very much eased the job, to Josh and Ray who as usual kept stirring the pot, and most of all to you guys and gals who kept sending in encouragement and checks.

The many warm notes I received from classmates, wives, and associates express their strong feeling for the class and for Princeton. They also reflect the high morale of the class in spite of the plight of more than a few, who carry with dignity and bravery the physical burden of 80 plus years. To these last, particularly, our thoughts go out as we dedicate to them our 60th anniversary gift to Princeton.

TREASURER'S REPORT

Bill Hewson

In the summer of 1983, Giff Agnew turned the Class Treasury of some $7,700 over to me. Ten happy years later — years of solvency but many ups and downs — it is my pleasure to pass on about $6,700 to my successor Brad Green. A hundred and sixty dues payers helped keep us afloat this year. As our numbers dwindle, we may have to re-examine our policy of subscribing to The Alumni Weekly for widow members without cost to them, since they now outnumber dues-paying members. But we leave that decision to the newly-elected class officers.

For twenty years the class has customarily kept a separate account for Reunion financing and it has been my pleasure for those twenty years — four major reunions — to have been custodian of that account.

How pleasant to report that, after paying all bills for our Stupendous Sixtieth, there is still a small surplus.

What a great and supportive bunch of classmates to have done business with, say I, in farewell. When you get Brad Green's first appeal next fall, please support your new officers with the same enthusiasm you have shown me over the last ten years.
